That is not to say that central nervous tissue cannot be stained and viewed under a microscope, but unstained tissue is most likely from the CNS—for example, a frontal section of the brain or cross section of the spinal cord. They didn't have much choice. Mark Twain is said to have once described a gold mine as a "hole in the ground owned by a liar," and more often than not, that liar was selling shares.

The anatomical divisions are the central and peripheral nervous systems. Money allows chairs and apples to be exchanged for an intermediary thing, which can be subdivided into very small units. From then on, the states controlled the banking business and gave out the charters.

Advertising causes an interesting situation. First we have to put aside the question about whether the poor are a permanent class or merely young people early in their careers who will grow wealthier, as discussed earlier.
